Korda - Wide Gape Teflon - probably one of the most fished hooks at the moment. Extremely sharp and very smooth due to the Teflon surface, which guarantees easy penetration into the fish's mouth. Furthermore, the hook is lighter, which is not to be neglected with various assemblies.

Product information

Developing hooks was a natural progression for Korda. The shapes are the result of thousands of hours on the water and everything we have learned has been incorporated into these hooks. We have named them Hybrid because they are a cross between the best features of all the hooks we have used over the years. The whole range is Teflon coated, which makes the hook surface noticeably smoother and therefore easier to penetrate. The points are super sharp, just as you would expect. The barbs are kept as small as possible to facilitate penetration and are still large enough to hold the hook.

The design of the Hybrid Wide Gape is based on the classic Maruta Kinryu Spade End hook shape, a very popular carp hook on the British Isles. The tip of the Wide Gape is angled slightly inwards, allowing the hook to grip quickly and securely. This feature, combined with extreme sharpness, makes the Wide Gape a classic.
The eye points inwards at a 15-degree angle, which makes it easier to twist the hook in. This effect can be further enhanced with a shrink tube.
In England, the country's best carp anglers rely on the Wide Gape. Like the incomparable Darrell Peck. He caught the biggest carp in England ("Two Tone") with a Wide Gape. Peck is convinced of the Wide Gape and uses it in combination with a whole range of rigs - both when fishing with boilies and with particles.
