The Klor has a very aggressive shape (even more so than our Kurv Shank hook), with the point in line with the eye, which encourages it to turn quickly and grab in the mouth of a carp. The curved shank and twisted eye allows the hook to be used without a shrink tube or kicker.

It is suitable for use with braided, coated leaders (if the coating is pulled back before the hook) and the combination rig.

The beak tip is long, ultra-sharp and slightly turned inwards, which ensures the most secure hook hold possible. It is also much less likely to be damaged by nuisance species such as crayfish and small fish moving along the bottom, especially when fishing over gravel.

The wire is very thick, resulting in a very strong hook that can be used even when using braid in weedy or suspended conditions without fear of it opening up. During the test, Danny landed carp to over 60 pounds from wild French waters that were full of hooks. Despite the thickness of the wire, the point remains very sharp and the whisker, once the hook goes in, ensures that it stays in place.
